About UNITAR

The United Nations Institute for Training and Research (UNITAR) has been training diplomats and other key actors in the multilateral system to strengthen their capacities and knowledge in the practice of diplomacy, and enabling positive change for 60 years.

As the training arm of the United Nations, UNITAR provides innovative learning solutions to individuals, organizations, and institutions to enhance global decision-making and support country-level action for shaping a better future.

Why Choose UNITAR?

Participants who choose UNITAR receive world-class training, and the opportunity to expand the reach of their global networks and increase their career prospects, all whilst learning from practitioners and fellow participants from different cultures and worldviews.

Over the past 60 years, UNITAR has acquired unique expertise and experience in designing and delivering a variety of training activities. We have become a leading institute in the provision of customized and creative learning solutions to institutions and individuals from both public and private sectors.

With a strategy fully focused on achieving the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), UNITAR supports the implementation of the 2030 Agenda.

Learn from Seasoned Experts

UNITAR's courses are taught by experts in the fields of international relations, diplomatic practice, and international law from academic and international circles - including practitioners from both within, and outside, the UN system.

UNITAR's Work in Multilateral Diplomacy

The Division for Multilateral Diplomacy works to enhance the capacities of diplomats, public officials, delegates, students, professionals and other stakeholders to increase performance in conferences and meetings convened at the United Nations, as well as other international and regional organizations, and level the playing field in multilateral settings.

We are uniquely positioned to support countries in strengthening national institutions for building capacity at all levels and fostering the participation of Member States in global governance, contributing to the acceleration of the 2030 Agenda.

In addition to face-to-face training and e-Learning courses, UNITAR provides the opportunity to gain knowledge and skills relevant to multilateral diplomacy and international law through post-graduate programmes.

UNITAR partners with academic institutions across the globe, thus combining the academic strengths of these esteemed universities with its world-class executive-style training.

Customized Trainings

Customized Trainings

UNITAR offers tailor-made trainings that are custom-designed based on an in-depth assessment of the specific requirements and learning objectives of the stakeholder(s).

This personalized approach ensures maximum engagement and knowledge retention, resulting in tangible skill development and enhanced performance.

Our training activities, which are offered in three formats: Face-to-face, online, and blended (hybrid), provide a variety of benefits for practitioners and organizations:

- Executive skills workshops by high-level UNITAR resource persons and experts in their fields
- Practical skills development for national and international careers
- Unique networking opportunities with UN practitioners and industry experts

Training Portfolio

The training activities outlined on the following pages (11-12) offer insight into UNITAR's extensive, customizable portfolio, however this is not a comprehensive list.

All training activities can be customized in terms of content, duration and/or venue.
Please contact us for more information on our Customized Training.

MSc in Human Rights and Diplomacy

Partner: University of Stirling

Human rights are omnipresent in international public discourse and everyday life. These rights, however, have been under increasing pressure in recent years, with wars, violations, and abuses committed against minorities across the world.

UNITAR and the University of Stirling are proud to offer a Master of Science in Human Rights and Diplomacy to address this concern. The programme is taught jointly between UNITAR and the University of Stirling's schools of Law, Philosophy, and International Relations.

It includes interactive seminars led by top University of Stirling professors, and workshops by prominent UN experts in critical skill building; a 3-day study visit to the "capital" of Human Rights in Geneva, Switzerland; and a 3-month Human Rights on-the-job placement in a UN Agency*.

Master in International Leadership and Negotiation

Partner: Universidad Europea de Valencia

The increase in volatility, uncertainty, complexity, and ambiguity (VUCA) in today's world means there is no longer one approach to management that can be applied to all organizations and work environments. Leaders must adjust their leadership strategies to be more flexible and adapt to a variety of challenges and situations.

In this context, the Division for Multilateral Diplomacy of the United Nations Institute for Training and Research (UNITAR) and the Universidad Europea de Valencia have jointly developed a Master's Programme in "International Leadership and Negotiation."

The one-year programme is designed to prepare students to lead global initiatives for change, and provide them with the necessary negotiation skills to positively impact their organization and environment.

Master in Anti-Corruption and Diplomacy

Partner: International Anti-Corruption Academy (IACA)

In today's globalized and increasingly complex world, the nexus between Diplomacy and Anti-Corruption efforts is now more important than ever. The United Nations Institute for Training and Research (UNITAR) and the International Anti-Corruption Academy (IACA) joined forces to offer a rigorous, diverse, and innovative anti-corruption and diplomacy curriculum. It reflects a variety of academic disciplines necessary for providing comprehensive insight into compliance systems, economics, ethics, digital and cyber diplomacy, international law, and many more. Essential skills for an international career such as leadership, cross-cultural communication, negotiation skills, and public speaking are at the core of the curriculum. Programme delivery is based on virtual live interaction, with one summer module taking place at the UNITAR Headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, ensuring effective knowledge transfer and networking opportunities that go beyond graduation.

After successful defence of a research thesis, graduates will acquire an internationally recognized degree of a total of 90 ECTS, while benefitting from both the academic and practitioner focus of the programme of two leading institutions in the field.

Diplomacy 4.0

Humankind is indisputably entering a new digital era. The impact of rapid technological and scientific advances on our lives is so great that World Economic Forum's founder Klaus Schwab termed this process as the "Fourth Industrial Revolution." We are the witnesses of the transcendence through new frontiers.

These new frontiers go beyond the traditional understanding of every aspect of human activity. Unlike in the past, diplomacy and international affairs can no longer afford to slowly adapt to these changes, as their pace demands business-like agility to stay abreast and relevant.

Diplomacy 4.0 is UNITAR's answer to these new challenges.

Join UNITAR's practitioners and experts to explore the nexus between diplomacy and areas of artificial intelligence, cybersecurity, scientific advancements, and other significant issues, paving the way for the next generation of international affairs professionals.
